one part of the article states that each of the 130 or so computers confiscated had between 1-2 terabytes of stolen software on them actually the two fact do not have anything in common